Superintendent's Report

I had a difficult time thinking about exactly what to write in my opening address to kick-off the 2020-2021 school year. This is largely due to the circumstances we are opening the school year in--a global pandemic and beginning the first trimester in eSchool.

We did not ask for any of this but must make the best of the situation. I am asking that we continue to come together in the service of our students, neighbors, teachers, and each other this fall.

The incredibly well-received meet and greets at each District 70 school last week were prime examples of this. The smiles on the faces of our students, their families, and staff were a reminder of the joy and hope that the beginning of any school year brings. These events reinforced the importance of schools for our children, families, and staff and were a great way to begin the school year. I would like to thank our principals, staff, and parent associations for planning these events and our students and their families for participating in them. We will continue finding ways to do things like this.

Today marks the first day of eSchool. eSchool was designed to mirror what students would experience during a day of in-person learning. This means that there will be much more live instruction, accountability, and consistency for our students moving forward. Our dedicated teachers and administrators have worked hard to prepare for a successful launch eSchool. I am proud of our eSchool program and it will serve our students well while we continue to monitor the public health crisis that we are experiencing and plan for a safe re-opening.

I want nothing more than to reopen schools for in-person learning. Doing so must be done in a measured and safe way. Toward that end, a reopening task force composed of parents, board members, teachers, nurses, and administrators has begun to meet to continue to explore and recommend ways that we can safely reopen our schools for in-person learning. The task force will explore and make recommendations in the following areas:

- Reopening metrics;
- Reopening approaches for the elementary schools;
- Reopening approaches for the middle school;
- Reopening health protocols;

The task force will provide an update at the September school board meeting and present final recommendations at the October meeting.

I sincerely hope that you and your family continue to stay well and have a great start to the school year.
